Pre-Hash

On a rather hot day and with ominous looking cloud cover the pack turnout this week was low, 31, including a single Cha-Am resident, 69 Forever. The GM called the assembled hounds together for the customary pre-run briefing by the Hares, Swindlers Pissed & Pythagoras. With assurances of no barbed wire, cows and other wildlife (although SP did see one snake when laying trail), usual markings, one walk run split and a fairly flat trail, the pack were ready for the off.

The Trail

The initial trail blazers, Mudman and Bush Wacker led the way in a southerly direction to the first check and that is where they were met by the rest of the pack. While the majority of the pack looked to the west and uphill, Tinks headed south through the bush and found paper and called the On On only to find a false trail sign further on. While the pack continued searching, Space Cowboy was seen making his usual slow walk in an easterly direction and eventually found paper and called the on. Tinks then continued to lead the pack through the many fly tipping sites to the next two checks, which were easily broken. As Tinks reached the run/walk split the Hare, SP was on station to see who went which way. The run then headed east to the tarmac road then south towards Laguna where the trail broke off to the right. At this point the front runners were Mudman & VD followed by Bush Whacker, Bent Banana & Tinks. It was at this point that the back runners, Davey Delayed and Scaly Back, missed the trail off to the right as there was no one in view to lead them in the correct direction. From here the trail headed across recently cleared ground and then headed west and then north circum navigating the Chinese cemetery and then merged with the walkers trail. Shortly after this Pythagoras was on station at the short walk split to see who wimped out. From here the trail took a steady uphill path, during which stage Bush Whacker started to slow up, finding the going too hot for his liking. Bent Banana also slowed during this stage. Tinks persevered and on route caught up with the last long walker, Hugmanannygoat, who was seen heading off trail. Hugs having been put back on trail, Tinks then continued in pursuit of other hounds and this did not occur until almost off the hill where VD and Mudman had slowed somewhat. No other walkers in sight though. From here on the trail followed a main track back to the finish where all the walkers except Jock Twat and Hugs, who were still on trail, were consuming snacks and refreshing themselves with Leo, Chang and other preferences.

Post Trail and Circle

The pack spent the next half hour reminiscing about the trail and other happenings during the past week until Tinks called the pack to order at 18:30 and then proceeded to award down downs to the following:
