Pre-Hash

With a week of wet weather the Hares persevered and managed to lay trail and 53 hardy hashers arrived at the run site by the side of the river to tackle another Mudman trail. With a lengthy introduction from the Hares which included "Avidly aspiring at assiduously attaining Scotch Tape's admirable alliterative acumen and anxious after all the myriad muddied misleading misdirections mandated by myself and the GM, I must congratulate you all for having made it here today" followed by the usual run qualifications, two run/walk splits and only one check, yes only one, no barbed wire, on a golf course and for runners/rambos the Mudman Hill of Death 2.

The Trail

Trail as completed by Tinks – Runners trail 5.7 km

The pack set out following directions from Mudman to go to the top by the cars and turn right and continue for about 300 meter till you find paper after which it was to the first run/walk split. A little guidance from Mudman saw the runners going in the right direction and following paper around a pineapple field with Tinks leading the way. However Tinks soon became back end Charlie having found the false trail. However Tinks tried to take advantage of the knowledge he had gained by reaching the false trail by not revealing to the other runners the need to go back to the split and then follow the walkers trail. It was then a case of follow paper across open ground which in fact was course 3 of the Majestic Creek golf course under renovation. After some 2.5 km from the split the second split was found well concealed in the undergrowth which led to some walkers ending up on the runners trail and the infamous Mudman Hill 2. However Mudman eventually reached the split to prevent other would-be runners from taking the wrong trail. From the split the walkers trail went in the direction of the overhead power lines and circumnavigating Mudman Hill to eventually merge with the runners and continued to the only check on the whole run. From here it was left and on back for around 1 km to the water side location and cold beers etc and snacks prepared by pussy Galore with fresh bread from the Masterbaker.

The Runners/Rambo's Loop

The trial from now on was into the shaggy and heavy undergrowth. The paper was a little more difficult to find but the blue string tails became more obvious as we started the climb uphill. Now this hill had several obstructions, muddy underfoot resulting in two up one back it very slow progress. Added to this the tree growth was barbed and therefore no good for hand holds. Davy Delayed and Jock Twat both confirmed they would continue with the climb to the top. Bent Banana had other ideas and headed back down and couldn't convince JT to join him. Hollow Legs also had second thoughts about which way to go but as Nutcracker was ahead of him he chose to stay the course. However the main sting in the trail was the wasp attack which No Name Pete came across first. Brambles and Tinks opted to skirt left and thereby avoided the problem. It transpired that the Brambles and Tinks route seemed easier to negotiate resulting in them reaching the top ahead of many others. Hare Mudman opted to sweep the back of the runners loop and in so doing caught up with Cathusalem and Jock Twat who was stung pretty bad and would succumb to this later on the decent. The downward leg was much easier and the trees more friendly thereby making the decent fairly quick to eventually meet up with the Walkers trail.

Post Trail and Circle

Whist many of the Hashers were into the beer and softies and enjoying the snacks prepared by Pussy Galore and Masterbaker drama was unfolding out on the trail. Jock Twat who had been stung many times on the hill was now starting to feel weak and dizzy. Having got down and made it to the split with the assistance of Mudman and Cathusalem, JT decided to stay with Cathusalem whilst Mudman ran back to JT's truck and knowing the dirt track conditions drove back to medivac him back to the start where he was reunited with Legs. Upon the advice of Hollowlegs and others Mages drove him back to the Bangkok Hospital where he was treated by some very cutie nurses for "Anaphylaxis Shock" (reaction to multiple bee/wasp stings) ' and his ol ticker was certified fine. Meanwhile back at the circle and as it was getting dark the GM decided to call the circle and award the following Down Downs:

Hash Snacks: Pussy Galore & Masterbaker

Forgotten Birthday: The McRobbie Family forgetting Uncle Robbie's birthday

Visiting Hashers: Dave and Pam from Dubai

Crippled Choir: Davy delayed and Hugmanannygoat (awarded by Scotch Tape)

Returners: Mud Skipper, Comes with Cathusalem,

Bee Keeper: No Name Peter

No Name Hashers: Pom. Peter & Kitiya

Virgin Hashers: Duang (from the adjacent fruit farm)

Hares: Mudman & Muddy Joe

100 Runs: Mudlady

Rear Ender (last Home): Cathusalem

Leavers: Cathusalem

With the circle closed and in the absence of JT & Legs the pack cleared up the area and loaded the balance of refreshment other hash paraphernalia into Hugs and Mudman's trucks. A fairly large contingent then made their way to the ON ON ON at Sabai Sabai on Soi 102. During which good news regarding JT was relayed from Legs via Tinks and Mudman.
