Pre-Hash

First arrivals at the run site, Tinks and Ballbanger a little confused as to exact location close to a rubber plantation as there was no obvious parking location. After clarification with the Hares by phone the location was correct but due to regarding of the road access to the more shaded area under tress was no longer an option. As Hashers arrived they parked on the road and sought shelter from the hot sun by the rubber trees where Tinks and the beer truck had parked. By the time Tinks closed the register with less than 10 minutes to the off a group of 44 hashers had arrived.

A pre-hash briefing by Virgin Lead Hare Bent Banana advised of three trails a short walk, long walk and runners trail. Also advised of no wasps, cows, fences but you may encounter elephants so beware. No mention of hilly and rocky ground which caused some Hares to end up on a trail they wished they hadn't. After a show of hands for those interested in having a roast dinner at the ON After the pack set off following shreddy on the right at 4:30 pm.

The Trail(s)

The runners trail as logged by Tinks

The pack headed away from the setting sun towards the distant low hills and then left away from the shade of the rubber trees. After a couple of checks it was onto a uphill slog through trees and over leaf covered ground before descending to the split after 1 km from the start. Long Walk right and the rest left. After only 200 metres the short walk split left leaving the runners to complete a loop over fairly flat ground for 1 km before joining up with the long walk. Jock Twat was on station to ensure tail ender's, Donkey Cock and Cathusalem, headed in the right direction.

As the trail skirted around the hill views across to northwest the long walkers could be seen heading in several directions. Plenty of Elephant dung on trail, someone stated that the Hares could have saved on paper. Upon reaching close to the Hua Hin Safari Park, Hare Bent Banana was having difficulty in making the hounds follow the trail rather than short cut the trail as some of the pack could be seen on trail only 10 metres away heading homeward. Snail Trail was tempted but eventually agreed to continue on with Haveyouhadmeyet, Brambles and Tinks. However the same could not be said for Donkey Cock and Cathusalem. Hare Jock Twat was again on station to ensure the pack headed into the trees and the uphill slog over the hill and down the other side. This was where Space Cowboy had wished he had taken the short walk home. On more flat ground the trail meandered around pineapple fields and back to the start. It was on this section that Old Macdonald demonstrated the correct way to fall when tripping with a nice rolling action and almost regaining his feet. It made sense for most the hashers to return to the cars rather than be pointed in the direction of the out trail by Hare Bent Banana. Who in their right mind would do that when we had been out best part of an hour?

Post Trail and Circle

As it approached 6:00 pm Tinks called for the circle in 2 minutes but was subsequently delayed by 15 minutes following a request by the sweeping Hare who had just arrived back and wished to rehydrate. When the circle, more of a rectangle, was eventually called Tinks proceeded to issue the following down downs:

Hares: Bent Banana & Jock Twat - given thumbs up for their efforts.
