Pre-Hash

With rain clouds gathering during the day the heavens opened and down came the rain around 2:30 pm in the hash run area. As a result, the attendance was expected to be low however 23 hashers were in attendance by the 4:30 start. Big Macker Nacker kept his money in his pocket until 10 minutes before the off as the weather looked like changing for the better.

The BRIEF

Bush Whacker, lead Hare, briefed the assembled on what was in store. One trail with a Rambo loop, no cattle, no barbed wire, paper on the right and a few checks. With the rain now gone the pack set off on trail.

The TRAIL - Walkers

The trail followed the lake side for a short while before breaking right into the bush. The trail wandered around before coming out to the first check. FRB opted to go right and after some consider distance picked up the wrong trail. Cock in a Frock and Cums Short Time went left and after some prompting eventually found the trail. Mumblings from the pack that the check was too long. The trail skirted the lake to the next check which then led the pack back into the bush and back out on the side of the lake for the third time and to check 3. Here the trail followed a water course back into the bush and to mega check 4 situated in a large open area. Again, the on on paper trail was too far but with paper found it was back through the bush to arrive in the pylon path and then over towards the hills and the Rambo/Walk split. The walkers went right and not to long after came to the Rambo merge point. From here the trail followed a well-defined trail until turning left into the bush again before emerging back on a clear path leading to check 5. The trail continued straight and then turned to the right heading back towards home and passing through checks 6 and 7 and then left through bush land onto a wide track and the up onto an elevated plateau before descending to the beer truck.

The Rambo Loop

From the split the trail started out with a gentle incline through the trees and gradually got steeper and steeper passing a Hobbit residence and finishing at a rock wall. The trail skirted along the base of the rock wall and then headed down hill to the merge point. The distance around 800 metres but taking around 25 minutes.

Pre-Circle

The consumption of beverages and munching of snacks intermingled with comments on the trail, such as, lack of paper, long checks, under now dry skies resulted in a prolonged pre-circle session. With calls for the circle to start and threats of leaving the GM got the circle under way.
