Pre-Hash and Briefing

A dry evening to welcome the Hashers being a change from meets over the past month. With the better weather a few more hashers showed up for a Dave the Rave special outside the now unused Gun Club. With the pack reaching 32 by 4:25 GM Tinks called the pack together for the briefing by Hare Dave the Rave. What could we expect? Usual checks with paper on the right and red ties in the trees. Maybe some cattle, a barbed wire fence, thorns, marshy ground conditions a friendly snake and a few yappy dogs. Two trails with one split and merge.

The TRAIL - Walkers

With the briefing over the pack set off towards the hill where we should find paper. The trail skirted along the base of the hill past a small homestead with several checks on route. After about km we reached the run walk split with walkers going straight and the Rambo's going right and almost back tracking. Shortly after the split the Rambo trail led through some very thorny bushland, mud and water underfoot and eventually coming out on the road to Stamford

University. It was in this thorny patch that I came across Colossus and Lost Cause who had missed the split and were not very happy. However, once they reached the road they turned left and picked up the trail leading back to the start. Meanwhile the Rambo's continued over the road and through bushland and through several checks and false trails. After passing through a barbed wire fence we reached another check. To the left was a false trail and to the right we found no paper. With the pack splitting up we searched for trail but without much luck until we eventually met the Hare. Apparently, we should have gone straight ahead at the last check in to the dense bushland which Ahmedashed had done. Several more checks and false trails until we came back out on the university road. From here it was a left right to the merge and an easy trail back to the beer truck.

Pre-Circle

The walkers trail turned out to be very short, less than 3 km. However, plenty of cold beer and softies to drink and potatoes salad and cake prepared by Rubber Scrubber for consumption. The Biermeister requested an early circle as he has some other agenda. So, with this in mind GM Tinks called the circle. To order.
