Pre-Run Briefing

With the weather being very similar to the previous run on 15 August, overcast skies and some heavy rain earlier in the day again the hounds that showed were the more hardy hashers to give credit to the Hares hard work in setting trail during the past week under blue skies and high temperatures. With the weather improving the Hares Head Ballcock and Cock in a Frock were called in to give the pre-run briefing. Two trails this week but both completely separated from each other. The walkers around 4.6 km and the Rambo's around 6 km. Paper on the right but may have been flattened into the ground because of the earlier rains.

The Trail (Rambo) With pack split into Rambo's and Walkers we set off on our respective trails. Walkers to the left and Rambo's to the right. The trail started out on a gravel road and then broke right to and skirted the lake below the road. This was no easy going as a result of the rain making the right sloping clay track slippery and sticky. We eventually came out on the road with Hare CiaF waving at us from the other side in bushland to guide us onto the trail. Not sure why he opted to do this. The trail led through bushland and long grass only to come out on the road again. The trail then went down towards the water before coming back up onto the road a few hundred metres further on. On we went circumnavigating pineapple fields and back to the road. The trail now went left and headed towards the hills and to me what was an obvious trail to the left. But the FRB's all went right to follow what turned out to be an exceptionally long false trail. Having now caught up with the pack we reached the section of ankle twisting rocky ground circumnavigating pineapple fields and hugging close to the hill side. This went on for some time and as a result various hounds (or should I say Ibex) opted to take less ankle twisting routes. We eventually came out onto the Pala-U Road and then continued over and down to and past a banana plantation. The trail went right across a small stream. At this point Dimwit had missed the paper and ended up trying to catch up with the other FRB's. Some more ankle twisting pineapple field circumnavigation which I opted to bypass and thereby ended up leading the pack. But this turned out to be to detriment as I ended up on a false trail resulting in now being tail end Charlie. Th trail was now flatter and more easily trackable except for Hare CiaF deliberately letting the pack go off trail for some time This resulted in me now being in the middle and heading in the right direction. The trail lead across open fields and skirted a rubber plantation and on towards home. The area became familiar to me from previous runs and eventually we followed a blue pipe back to the main road and on back to the cars.

Pre-Circle

By the time the Rambo's had returned the several of the walkers had already departed and therefore the circle crowd was depleted to less than 20. However, the weather had brightened up and so the drinking of cold beverage and crunching of crisps continued interspersed with the usual comments about the trails and in particular the challenges with the Rambo trail terrain and multiple short cutting. As the evening closed in the post run circle was called and down downs awarded.

Circle Down-Downs:

Hares: Head Ballcock and Cock in a Frock. Walkers enjoyed other than Butt Out who ended up in a head high trench and blamed it on the paper. The Rambo's gave a thumbs up although confessed to taking several short cuts over the ankle twisting terrain.

Incorrect use of names in the Circle: Tinks

Short Cutters: all the Rambo's Tinks, HTT African Queen, Scrubbers Bugger, Brambles, Ding-a-Ling, Dimwit and No Names John, Zen and Dimitri.

The Young Potential Rambo: I'm not young Aey taking the Rambo trail in error at the start

Hash Fink: Jock Twat for the Dimwit Ding-a-Ling story

Long Route to Restaurant: Dimwit and Ding-a-Ling together with Brambles who they blame for turning right rather than left and ending up in Pranbury

Biermeister Team: Jock Twat & Legs Wide Open

Incorrect use of names in the Circle again: Tinks

Pocket Billards: Head Ballcock
