Pre-Run

A return to a location used by Onefer and Ahmedashed some 27 months ago. Although the hares had found a large grassy parking area just off the road the location was interrupted by truck movements along the adjacent road resulting in dusty conditions. Apparently, the trucks had not been hauling on this road until today. Under clear blue skies the pack started to gather and shortly before the start time some 40 hashers were ready for the briefing. Scrotum Head together with Black Buttocks briefed the gathered hounds advising that there were two trails, a walkers and runners, and after the split point would not merge again until back at the start point. No barbed wire, paper on the right, checks and maybe some false trails. With the briefing over the pack set out on time.

The Trail,

After the pack had left 69 Forever arrived some five minutes later his motor bike. After a quick update on the pre-run briefing, he set off to catch up. About five minutes later Orange Pippin and I (Tinks) decided we would do a 15 to 20 minute outward trek and then reverse the trail back to the start. From the car park the trail led left along the dusty road and then left along a track leading towards the hill then turned right and ran along the side of the hill before heading back down to the dusty haul road. The trail continued over the road and down the side of quaver plantations before breaking out onto gravel road. It was at this point OP and I headed back to the start. On our way back we met Slime and Lucky Me chasing after the pack following their usual late arrival. The trail then continued round more crop fields before heading west towards the hill and I assume a split point as the Walkers and Rambo's had been advised they would be returning from different directions. Although the Hares had said the trail was reasonable flat this apparently was not the case according to the runners as they headed uphill in the direction of Springfield Golf Course before heading in a more northerly direction and downhill to come out on the main road. From here it was a run back along the road and a left turn back to the carpark. First Walker back was Onefer in just under an hour with the Rambo's arriving some 20 minutes later led by Sodomy.
