Pre-Hash

Another wet week leading up to this week's Hash but Hugs and Cute Comer assured us that it would be fine on the day but maybe a bit wet and muddy in a few places. For me this was a return to the site of Run #209 on 10th September 2011 where I ended up following a paper trail that had been laid by the Bangkok Bike Hash and resulted in me completing 10+ km and arriving back in the dark and most of the pack having left for home and the On On. So, this week I planned to be more cautious and be a Tail End Charlie.

Pre-Hash Circle.

The pre-hash circle was called to order by Ding-a-Ling and the hares Hugs and Cute Comer on what to expect. One split and one merge, no fences, no hills, maybe some false trails/check backs. Trail was marked with paper balls and blue string on the right side of the trail. Hugs warned about the possibility of Hornets on trail but advised this would not be a problem if you did not flap your hands around as this would only make them more aggressive. No mention about thundering FRB's disturbing them in advance of the Walkers. Hong Kong Dong was welcomed back but his footwear looked more like duct tape than shoes. With the briefing over the pack set off.

The Trails as set by the Hares!

The Walkers Trail.

The FRB's raced away on a well-marked trail to the first check which was quickly broken. But a well laid back-check had the FRB's re-joining the Walkers. The trail took a left turn off the main track into the shiggy and to a check which again slowed down the FRB's. The trail eventually rejoined the main track which had also been taken by many SCB's who must have spotted the FRB's ahead coming back out of the bush. Shortly thereafter was the Rambo/Walkers split. The trail now wandered through dense grass land interspersed with trees and some wet patches. Knockout Neptune was with me and passed comment as to how Hugs must have spent many hours planning these routes. Don't worry Hugs your secret is safe with me. The trail then came out onto a more defined gravel trail before turning right back into the bush. Jock Twat was a little concerned that he might encounter the Hornets that Hugs had mentioned at the start, but this proved not to be the case as none were reported. The trail then led onto another check which had the front Walkers foxed for a while. Ding-a-Ling eventual found trail and off we headed through some rather wet terrain for awhile before a dryer section before coming out onto open ground with a herd of goats and onto a tarmac road. After a short while the trail headed back through trees passing a charcoal burning pit before joining the main road back to the start point.

During the post run gathering Bite Mark got stung but no one got stung on trail.
