Pre-Hash.

Inquisitive Thais peered out their car windows whizzing along Hwy 2052 as debonair older men, attractive young ladies and a couple of spirited dogs assembled for their weekly fix of sweat, beer, and giggles. The hashers admired the new run site, as if it was tailored made with easy access and ample room for the beer wagon and Circle.

The Trail

Once Dingaling explained the markings and details of the trail, the rabble including Lucky Me and Slime who again were on time, set off to form a conga line in the sugar cane field. In the flat, open terrain the runners were slowed down by enough checks for the slower runners of Bent Banana, Gerard, Drag Queen with Bonnie, Honeymoon, Donga and new chum, Slimy Limey to stay in touch with Mudman. African Queen hung back with the walkers, enthralled in conversation with Lucky Me and Hong Ting Tong.

As the checks dried up after a few kms, the runners pulled well ahead of the pack. This red sign caused a little confusion. Ironic given the same hare forgot to use it on the AGM run, resulting in the FRBs doing the run twice, and thankfully to the shortest AGM in H2H3 history.

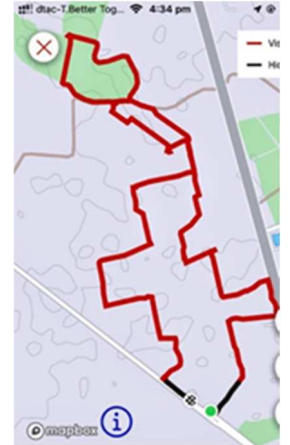

This time, Mudman checked the wrong way and the slower runners caught up once again. After the runners finished the loop, Head Ballcock and Slime were sighted, seemingly unsure whether they should do it or not, and decided why bother when there's cold lager waiting.

The runners got in first and most of the walkers weren't far behind, except for Lucky Me, Hong Ting Tong, African Queen and newbie Nam, still engrossed in meaningful chatter.

The Circle

The rabble drifted around the site, swapping yarns of the trail and eagerly awaiting the Circle to be formed. The beer maidens prepared under the watchful eye of Rank Hovis while Jock Twat and Mudman discussed the Origin of the Species and where they thought they fit it.

Not long after, Rubber Duck's new pooch, Rambo did his darndest to mount Bonnie, before losing interest and instead chose to drink Chang from Donga's tankard.

This was enough for Ding-a-Ling to get the Circle underway and it didn't take long for Hugs to accuse Tinks of shortcutting, which drew a firm rebuttal. Religious Advisor lightened things up in teasing virgin Colin, who reckons he'll be back for more. Looks like a masochist too.

Good to have Drag Queen supported by KO Neptune vary the hash songs and Puss in Boots doing the honours again with the videoing.
