Congratulations to Head Ballcock and Hong Ting Tong

Our latest superb stand in hares

It was an interesting trail.

We enjoyed a pleasant meandering walk and challenging run through pineapple fields.

The hares even went out scouting to check that hashers were on paper.

The ones that were unsure of their directions.

The predictable afternoon turned out to be somewhat different.

Much to everyone's surprise.

About 10 minutes after the start

Hashers could not believe their eyes.

They were witnessing a sample of a man's incredible acrobatic prowess.

One minute Donga was holding his phone and gesticulating to others.
The next minute he threw himself up 2 metres high into the air.
His legs did a cartwheel of 360 degrees.
Donga instantly landed on his arse!
Not his knees.

A rapid on trail internet search determined this rare feat of acrobatic action to be the Kabbala Koola Koola
It has been a historic feat that drunk aboriginal Australians, still today, perform for money at charity events.

So, we had about 28 hashers, many in the new attractive blue shirts, walking running even jogging through the undulating pineapple fields.

Hashers enjoyed the next hour of contrasting scenery.
Then they hit the tall grasses, the very muddy soil, and a tarmac road.

The trail was clear and well signed on an afternoon shockingly free of rain.

Paper was in abundance.

As usual in those very neat little Brambles Bill prepared coils.

Welcome to the H2H3 movie queen,
Puss in Boots, sponsored by the House of Yen from Siam Paragon, was on the scene.

Thus, everyone was seen.

There was no escaping her little red camera.

Lots of Facebook smiles.

Gotcha all!

Her entertaining video is anticipated.

The GM, Ding a Ling, smartly attired in his yellow shirt.

Project managed the circle, as the sun went to bed.

Many down downs for Donga.

One for arriving late at the hash.

A second beer for taking a piss at a location not so far from hashers.

A third beer for leaving Thailand and not returning for 5 months.

A fourth beer for interrupting the GM.

A fifth down down for performing the Kabbala Koola Koola and not damaging his phone.

After all that the GM managed to squeeze in some chats with visitors.

And assess the hashers' approval of the trail.

It was a good run and a good walk.

Of course, it was, without any doubt.

Let us all give a big shout!

To Head Ballcock and Hong Ting Tong.

As Hash Run No. 519 successfully satisfied the H2H3 throng.
